Author: Rilla Takhista

A barbaric king, primitive, strong, and bold, sits on a rustic throne made of pickaxes, spades and rough boards. At the top are two horns and sheaves of rushes, with a candle burning in the center. His crown is made of copper wrought in the shape of acorns. His hair and beard are red and wiry. His copper armor is decorated with ᶜᵉames and a goat's head and he carries a club. A tankard of beer is at his feet. The gold light of autumn shines on the woods behind him.
